

The NAACP San Diego Branch Veterans Committee and Mo`olelo Performing Arts Company
Invite You to a Performance and Post-Show Reception of

HOW I GOT THAT STORY

a play by Amlin Gray, directed by Seema Sueko

When: Sunday, March 4, 2012
2:00 PM Performance

Followed by NAACP San Diego Branch Reception

Where: Mo`olelo at The 10th Avenue Theatre
930 10th Avenue, San Diego, CA 92101

Tickets: $15/person – NAACP San Diego Branch Special
The regular rate is $30/person. There are a limited number of discounted tickets available for the NAACP San Diego Branch.

Order Tickets: Order online at www.moolelo.net; use coupon code NAACPSD for the March 4 performance of How I Got That Story; OR call 619-342-7395. Be sure to mention “NAACP Special for March 4.”

To pay by check, mail check payable to “Mo`olelo” to:
Mo`olelo, PO Box 710564, San Diego, CA 92171-0564

About the play:

How do you survive the confusion of war?

An eager newspaper reporter from Dubuque travels to fictional war-torn “Am-bo Land” to cover the country, but the country ends up covering him. This fast-paced “nightmare comedy” asks: where is the boundary between historical fact and subjective experience? What is the human impact of war and the role of the media? This two-man play stars Brian Bielawski and Greg Watanabe.

Why this partnership:

Mo`olelo Performing Arts Company is on a mission to diversify the landscape of American theater. A community-focused, socially-conscious, Equity theater company, Mo`olelo selects plays that give the Company the opportunity to outreach to communities that are traditionally underserved by American theater and that allow for significant roles for actors of color. Mo`olelo brought us Stick Fly by Lydia Diamond last year. Let’s support this Company that supports us. Learn more about Mo`olelo at www.moolelo.net.

NAACP of San Diego
Equality is the Right of Every Citizen

Actors Brian Bielawski and Greg Watanabe.